PERSIAN VISIT TO THE WHITE HOUSE: The Shahansh, or King of Kings, of Iran and his radiant Empress Soraya, are shown as they were greeted by President Eisenhower at the White House on their last visit to the United States, Mohammad Reza Shah Pahlavi, born in 1919, was educated in Switzerland and completed his studies at the Officers Training College in Teheran. He took over the throne from his father, Reza Shah the Great, in 1941 at a critical juncture in World War H and in helping to build the "BRIDGE OF VICTORY" in Iran showed that he was a unique blend of East and West, Since the war, the king has devoted himself, as a "modern, liberal Monarch," to serving the needs of his people, of raising their standard of living, and of establishing political stability. He is an all-round sportsman, pilots his own plane and loves speed. In all his activities he enjoys the loyal assistance of his lovely Queen, daughter of ancient Persian nobility. She devotes her time to social work and tending to the needs of the underprivileged section of the community, Both are symbols of Iran's unswerving allegiance to the West and staunch resistance to the encroachment of foreign political ideologies. tlement as Nov. 31, 1957.
